Maria Dumlao works in a variety of media, photography, artist books, installation, performance, sound and video, to highlight interstitial moments and bring marginalized content to the foreground. Dumlao's work has exhibited widely including Art in General and Momena Art Gallery in NYC, The Contemporary Museum in Hawaii and internationally in Utrecht, Barcelona, Vancouver, London, Madrid, Berlin, and Tokyo. Dumlao was an artist-in-residence at Experimental Television Center in Owego, NY and at free103point9's Wave Farm in Acra, NY. Her collaborative work with Brainstormers has appeared at Brooklyn Museum of Art and Bronx Museum of Art (a collaboration with Guerilla Girls) and received funding from The Puffin Foundation.

Through photography, video and artist books, Julianna Foster's work represents distinct narratives, which are informed by her interest in cinema and storytelling and its relationship to photography. Her work has exhibited locally at the Philadelphia Art Alliance, Fleisher Art Memorial (2013 Wind Challenge recipient), Grizzly Grizzly, the Main Line Art Center in Haverford and Vox Populi among others. Foster was a 2014 artist in residence at the Philadelphia Photo Art Center and was selected as a 2016/2017 finalist at the Center for Emerging Visual Artists. She has also participated in international group exhibitions in England, Romania, Spain and most recently Korea and Bulgaria, and has work featured in private collections across the country.
